

Bluetooth audio transmitter

Increasing the use of your AirPods

Three applications

The incentive

QuietVox

Tour commentary receiver

- Select channel used by tour guide
- Use headset to listen in
- Hang device around neck via lanyard
- Device swings around
- Wiring gets caught in sweaters and jackets

Airfly

Best rated of many similar brands

- Plugs into QuietVox, replacing headset
- Provides stereo output via minijack
- Was able to put QuietVox out of the way in back pocket
- Several models from $40 - $80
- Pro version allows two simultaneous Bluetooth connections

On the plane or train

- Instead of a wired connection to the on-board entertainment system ...
- We used it in-flight as our first non-iPhone connection
- One trick: plug in Airfly, then re-boot it. Then make the Bluetooth connection

Airfly with adaptor

- Depending on in-flight connections, you may need this inexpensive stereo-to-dual mono adaptor

In-ear Monitor

- Instead of large stage monitor speakers for my a cappella quartet, I tried out Airfly for in-ear sound monitoring
- I just need this mini-Jack to 1/4" adaptor to plug to into the mixing board
- It allow me to plug the Airfly into one of the mixer's 5 headphone jacks
